VI International Mineral Processing Seminar

2-4 December 2009. Santiago, Chile

PARTICIPANTS

The Department of Mining Engineering of the University of Chile has the pleasure to invite mining industry professionals, as well as academics, consultants, researchers technology and service providers to participate in the VI International Mineral Processing Seminar —PROCEMIN 2009, to take place on 2-4 December 2009, in Santiago, Chile.

OBJECTIVES

PROCEMIN 2009 provides a unique opportunity for executives, operators, researchers and suppliers from the global mining and minerals processing industry to analyze and discuss recent developments in technological innovations, process and equipment design, and new projects and plant expansions. The objectives of the seminar are:

- Enhance the exchange of knowledge and experience in the mineral processing of copper, molybdenum, gold, silver, iron and other base metals.
- Identify and discuss major challenges, such as efficient use of water and energy, environmental impact and social acceptance of mining.
- Generate a global networking platform among professionals engaged in mineral processing.

AREAS OF INTEREST

- Metallurgical Processes
- Operation of Concentration Plants
- Handling of Scarce Resources
- Main Equipment and Consumables
- New Projects and Expansions
- Sustainable Mining Development

Authors are invited to submit a 500-word abstract of their paper, in English, before 16 March 2009, to info@procemin2009.com. The abstracts should include author's name, position, company, complete address, and telephone numbers (office and mobile) as well as the e-mail address. Final papers of those abstracts that are selected for presentation during the Seminar, will be accepted until 29 May 2009. Papers will have to be 4 to 10 pages long, written in English.

First Announcement and Call for Papers

The program considers both oral and poster presentations; the presentation format of each paper will be defined once the final version of the paper is received. Simultaneous Spanish-English translation will be available during the sessions.
